

Office of Government Relations Internship Fall 2024

The Episcopal Church's Office of Government Relations is seeking two interns to provide research, policy, and administrative support during the fall of 2024, approximately from late August through December. This internship provides opportunities to learn and practice the skills of policy research and analysis, advocacy, and engagement. While the interns will have significant autonomy in their work, the staff works closely with them to provide an enriching experience and access to outside experts and resources; an intern can expect mentoring and training in skills desirable in any policy-based office.

The interns will:

- Support engagement with government officials, in partnership with faith and secular coalitions
- Work to engage and mobilize Episcopalians in the Episcopal Public Policy Network and assist in writing and research for weekly action alerts and other online communication outreach
- Research and track crucial legislative initiatives around issues of poverty relief, immigration, the environment, international peace and justice, and more
- Attend committee hearings, think tank events, and other events in the Washington, D.C., policy community as needed
- Administrative tasks as needed

By the end of the program, the intern will have achieved the following outcomes:

- Learn how the staff of the Office of Government Relations and members of the Episcopal Public Policy Network advocate for the positions of The Episcopal Church
- Gain proficiency in policy research and writing by working with staff on Episcopal Church policy and congressional legislation
- Achieve a level of comfort with faith-based advocacy through work with staff members on public policy
- Acquire administrative skills necessary to succeed in any office environment

Applicants, while not required to be Episcopalian, should be committed to representing positively and effectively the policy positions of The Episcopal Church. Additionally, they should possess strong research and communication skills, both oral and written.

The internship is full-time and includes a stipend or school credit.

To apply, please submit your resume, cover letter, and two writing samples to Susie Faria sfaria@episcopalchurch.org
